

THE PEOPLE WELL PLEASED

Hearty Congratulations General Harrison Has Received Over the Wires.

They Come from Citizens of Indiana and from Those of Other States—Clubs, Societies and Churches Add Their Good Wishes.

From the telegrams and messages conveying congratulations General Harrison has received in almost countless numbers since the election the following additional selections are made.

FROM INDIANA FRIENDS.

James H. Phares, Fowler: Accept hearty congratulations, and I wish you prosperity. The Republican party will be victorious in 1892. With you as our standard-bearer, and the people aroused to the situation, it could not have been otherwise.

James M. Shaffeloff, Evansville: I cordially congratulate you on your signal victory.

James and Jos. D. Oliver, South Bend: Accept our hearty congratulations. You were nominated, we pointed to with pride, and you have won the victory in this county, and have done so, and also given you a majority.

John H. Baker, Goshen: I congratulate you on your great victory. It means good government and prosperity.

W. E. and Mrs. Culbertson, New Albany: We congratulate you and Mrs. Harrison. The country is safe and Indiana rejoices.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brown, New Albany: Sincere congratulations. May your hands and heart find strength and courage for the great responsibilities upon you.

A. Dowling, New Albany: Accept congratulations upon your splendid fight and magnificent victory.

N. K. Elliott, Terre Haute: General, my heartiest congratulations on your election. With you as our standard-bearer, and the people aroused to the situation, it could not have been otherwise.

F. A. Friedly, Richmond: Right-minded temperance men are cordially satisfied with you and the Republican party. Congratulations.

Ed Crumacker, Valparaiso: The Tenth district sends congratulations for your glorious triumph.

M. D. Tackett, Greensburg: Cordial congratulations upon your election. Indiana has redeemed our pledge made at Chicago. Glory enough for one day.

James A. Bridgland, Indianapolis: As Providence has smiled on the Nation by your election, I send you and Mrs. Harrison greetings, with the belief that your success as President will be equal to your high standing with all honest people. All the good men in your behalf have not done as much for your election as your own.

M. M. Hurley, New Albany: The English language is too poor to express my happiness. My wife joins me in congratulations to yourself and Mrs. Harrison.

James S. Henry, Gosport: The Republicans of Gosport send congratulations on your success.

Henry T. Johnson, Richmond: Congratulations on the splendid victory, to the attainment of which your admirable leadership has so largely contributed.

J. H. Burford, Crawfordsville: Montgomery county Republicans congratulate you on your election. With you as President, the solid South and four years of prosperity.

Wm. M. Arndson, Madison: Jefferson county again congratulates you on your election.

G. H. Thayer, Plymouth: Accept my hearty congratulations on your election. The Republicans of Marshall county fought nobly and now rejoice in the great victory.

F. W. Nolte, Mt. Vernon: Greetings to the new President of the United States of America. The post office is happy over your victory.

John Leffert, Lafayette: Congratulations. I would to God we could send all rebel brigades in Congress with Cleveland.

Richard Walker, Terre Haute: Republican employees of the W. & A. Iron Company congratulate you and rejoice over the greatest victory the party of progress has achieved for years.

John J. Safety, Silverwood: The President has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Thank God, the redemption of human equality draws nigh.

J. B. McFadden, Shelbyville: Nowhere within the wide domain of civilization are your friends more joyous and happy over the victory than in old Shelby.

W. A. Dean and Others, Wladfield: The 250 Republicans of Wladfield congratulate you on your election to the presidency.

Julius Potlitz, Ft. Wayne: As I congratulate you upon your nomination, I now sincerely congratulate you upon your election.

Herman Haas, Ft. Wayne: I yelled for you and spit a lung. I have another lung at your disposal.

P. W. Kinsley, Columbia City: The question of fair wages and free homes for a free people is now settled. Accept congratulations from Whiskey.

R. H. Nixon, Newport: In behalf of the citizens of Newport, who did their whole duty to secure your success, permit me to congratulate you on your election to the highest office in the gift of the Nation.

Manley D. Wilson and Sidney E. Hanch, Madison: Accept our congratulations on your election to the presidency. It means four years of prosperity and good government.

G. M. Overst, et al: A. B. Hunter and Jesse Overst, Franklin: Congratulations upon your victory, assuring the continuance of the American policy of government.

Louis Sizer, Madison: Accept hearty congratulations. Republican world with delight, and Indiana's noble son a all right.

J. Gardner, Bedford: Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

Benjamin F. Hooper, Attica: Old Fountain's tenth legion salutes you with a majority 142.

Sam W. Lamping, W. H. Thomas and Others, Rockport: Spencer county sends greetings to the new President by majority of forty-eight, a gain of 170.

James H. Bock, Ellettsburg: I congratulate you on the result of the election.

A. C. Daily, Lebanon: Cordial congratulations on your election. The Republicans here are very happy over the result.

Joseph Levinson, Shelbyville: Please accept my hearty congratulations. May the God of Israel bless you, guide and protect you in all your future actions, in my sincere wish.

John K. Gowdy, Nashville: The Republicans of Rush county are proud of you as their standard-bearer, and have given you the largest majority ever given any candidate.

George A. Lindgren, LaPorte: My many Swedish friends congratulate you. We voted as they did in Minnesota.

C. W. Sherr, Liberty: Accept my congratulations upon your election to the presidency and the great victory won under your leadership.

Marion R. Salsar, Madison: I congratulate you as the Nation's choice, and as the greatest victory in this district in 1884 of 1,437 has been reduced to 875. Sorry we could not entirely wipe it out.

A. Cullen, Rushville: Allow me to congratulate you. The premises we made at Chicago has been most gloriously vindicated.

T. J. Lucas, Lawrenceburg: Cordial congratulations. The Republicans are jubilant and the Democrats distracted.

J. F. Salsar, Cannonsburg: The Republicans of Perry county send compliments for your majority.

W. A. Bodine, Morristown: Words fail to express the heartfelt thanks of your soldier-comrades and friends here in their decision to vote for you.

M. V. Mallory, Chair. Cent. Com. C. A. Anthony, Chair. Ex. Com.: Republicans of Floyd helped win the victory, gaining three hundred in a hard fight. We tender congratulations, and are happy.

J. G. McPheters, Bloomington: Accept the hearty congratulations of the Republicans of Monroe county, who have given our electors the largest majority ever given.

J. M. Townsend, Richmond: Accept congratulations of colored voters of Wayne county.

Reub Wiggins, Editor Indianapolis-Republican: Warsaw Permit me to congratulate you. My paper sends you our warmest wishes. In 1872, and I never wavered in your support from that day to this. It looks as if the people were about to restore the administration of this government to the party and the men who saved it. Health and happiness, Mr. President.

FROM CLUBS AND COMMITTEES.

R. J. Wymond, Bond, Va.: Mr. Fred Iselhardt, Chair. Mattia, Committee. Aurora: The Harrison and Morton Club of this city and their sincere congratulations upon the result of Tuesday's election. A public opinion inspires the public trust.

Wm. H. Armstrong, President, Terre Haute: Every member of the Columbia Club has hearty congratulations, and rejoices that what was claimed for you at Chicago has been so emphatically endorsed by the people.

Mrs. L. C. Hoss, President, Kokomo: The Kokomo Ladies' Harrison and Morton Club extend hearty congratulations.

Tom E. Niles, President, Charlottesville: The Harrison Club tender their heartiest congratulations. Justice triumphs.

Haynes, Spencer & Co., Protection Club, Richmond: The Haynes, Spencer & Co. Protection Club tender their hearty congratulations. You know you will do your whole duty, and add to the fair fame of our State and Nation, and we return to our labor with renewed confidence in the future.

POWDERY AND HIS KNIGHTS

An Outlook as to the Eleventh Annual Session of Their General Assembly.

It Will Convene To-Morrow With Several Important Matters to Come Before It That Will Cause Long and Spirited Discussions.

The eleventh annual session of the General Assembly, Knights of Labor, which convenes in this city to-morrow, promises to be the most interesting in the history of the organization, from the fact that the prosperity of the order greatly depends upon the solution of several questions that will come up for consideration.

It is said by some that radical changes must be made to insure the prosperity of the order, but it is just to say, however, that these predictions all come from members who have been disappointed in the past and are not in sympathy with Powderly's administration of affairs.

One of the points around which a contest will center will be the election of a general master workman, an executive committee of eight members, and a full list of general officers. Mr. Powderly has repeatedly said that he would not stand for re-election; but his intimate friends declare that he is the only man in whose hands the order can be safely trusted, and will insist upon him accepting the leadership for another term. It is claimed that he can be re-elected if he is willing to accept, as most of his influential enemies, it is said by his friends, are not in a position to materially injure him. It is announced, however, that they will be in Indianapolis in force, and will conduct a vigorous campaign from the outside against him.

The leaders of the opposition are Thomas Barry and C. W. Carlton, late of the general executive board, and J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

POWDERY AND HIS KNIGHTS

An Outlook as to the Eleventh Annual Session of Their General Assembly.

It Will Convene To-Morrow With Several Important Matters to Come Before It That Will Cause Long and Spirited Discussions.

The eleventh annual session of the General Assembly, Knights of Labor, which convenes in this city to-morrow, promises to be the most interesting in the history of the organization, from the fact that the prosperity of the order greatly depends upon the solution of several questions that will come up for consideration.

It is said by some that radical changes must be made to insure the prosperity of the order, but it is just to say, however, that these predictions all come from members who have been disappointed in the past and are not in sympathy with Powderly's administration of affairs.

One of the points around which a contest will center will be the election of a general master workman, an executive committee of eight members, and a full list of general officers. Mr. Powderly has repeatedly said that he would not stand for re-election; but his intimate friends declare that he is the only man in whose hands the order can be safely trusted, and will insist upon him accepting the leadership for another term. It is claimed that he can be re-elected if he is willing to accept, as most of his influential enemies, it is said by his friends, are not in a position to materially injure him. It is announced, however, that they will be in Indianapolis in force, and will conduct a vigorous campaign from the outside against him.

The leaders of the opposition are Thomas Barry and C. W. Carlton, late of the general executive board, and J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one year ago. J. R. Egan, of New York City, and until lately editor of the Chicago Labor Equivoc.

The session first appeared two years ago at Chicago, and since that time the order has been steadily increasing in numbers. The failure of the great Southwest railroad, and the consequent loss of business, and the strengthening of a feud which involved nearly the entire membership of the order.

The failure of the stockyard strike at Chicago caused further loss of business, and the feeling against Powderly became so great that Chicago sent a solid anti-Powderly delegation to the Minneapolis Assembly one